

Trusting in the Dark
1 Cor 13:12

NANCY COMPTON WILLIAMS

Press your face
against the darkness.
Own the countenance
reflected by the pane.
You are known
on both sides of the glass.

[Nancy Compton Williams has been writing a poem a week during her retirement from teaching. She has had over eighty poems published in various journals, as well as a book, Stillness Walks on Water. She lives in Huntsville, AL and serves on the editorial board of Poem.]
